Better futures for young lives with epilepsy

Young Epilepsy works to create better futures for the 112,000 children and young people with epilepsy in the UK. We provide specialist education and care services for 200 young people who are most severely affected by epilepsy and other conditions, at our Surrey headquarters. This is home to St Piers School and College plus the award-winning Neville Childhood Epilepsy Centre, where we conduct world-leading research and provide assessment, diagnostic and rehabilitation services to those with complex epilepsy. We also raise awareness of epilepsy and provide epilepsy training to parents, carers and health professionals and provide support and information to those most affected by the condition and their families.
